K-12 Report

On Feb 2, our middle and upper school robotics team, Roboken, competed in their league tournament. After a season of hard work, they came in to the event ranked first in northeast NJ. They held that position throughout the day and ended up as the captain of the winning alliance. This advances them to the NJ state championship.

They also won the Design Award, which recognizes design elements of the robot that are both functional and aesthetic. Finally, they were first runner up for the Inspire Award, which is the highest award and is given to teams who perform well in all aspects of judging. As first runner up, they also would have advanced to states had they not already as the winning captain.

The team had a great day performing exceptionally both on the field and in judging. Their success is a testament to their work ethic and being a well-rounded team.

Lower/Middle School Report

Middle schoolers Finn Getz and Sami Gotimer won first place for the school award for the highest percentage of wins via ESU Middle School Debate Program in NYC this month. They are two members of Ms. Lingechetty-Isom's Debate Club. HCS joined the NY Debate League in September 2018 and over the past year and a half have taken a lot of time to observe, learn, and practice this method of debate and were thrilled with this win. HCS hopes to continue this level of success in upcoming tournaments.

On Friday, February 13, HCS lower school students observed No One Eats Alone Day. As in years past, students mix with other K-4 students to promote an inclusive environment and build friendships and community.

Through the Stevens Duckling Program, run by the Student Athlete Advisory Council (SAAC) of Stevens Institute of Technology, current student athletes led a lesson with 6th grade science through which students built a catapult to launch their projectile farthest while learning about force and motion.

Upper School Report

We had a successful Upper School Conference Night. Families were invited to pick up a copy of their 1st semester report card and to meet with teachers. Many students attended with their families, resulting in productive conversations.

The end of January saw the beginning of a new marking period and students were able to start new elective classes. This marking period, the Sophomores are all engaging in Explorations. This course is designed to give students an opportunity to explore an area of personal interest as they learn and develop research and writing skills. Other students were able to choose from an array of electives including Media Art (an interactive multimedia design and production course developed in partnership with Stevens University), Global Issues (a student-led discussion and research based examination of global current events), Afro-musicology (students explore the evolution of African music), Fashion for a Better Tomorrow (fashion as activism), SAT prep, and Blogging in Spanish. Electives are designed by staff, with input from students, and focus on Social Justice themes, the arts, and/or 21st century life and career skills.
